Specific Absorption Rate (SAR) Safety

This device has been designed to comply with applicable safety requirements for exposure to radio waves. These requirements are designed for the safety of all persons and follow scientific guidelines including safety margins.

- The radio wave exposure guidelines employ a unit of measurement known as the Specific Absorption Rate or SAR. Tests for SAR are conducted using standardised methods, with the device transmitting at its highest certified power level in all used frequency bands.

- This device is designed and manufactured not to exceed emission limits for radio frequency (RF) energy exposure.

- This device is in compliance with the Specific Absorption Rate (SAR) for the general population or uncontrolled exposure limits (2.0W/kg and 4.0W/kg) specified in Council Recommendation 1999/519/EC and had been tested in accordance with the measurement methods and procedures specified in EN 62209-1:2016 and EN 622092:2010+AMD1:2019.

- The highest SAR value for this model tested for use when worn on the body is 1.175W/kg (10g).

- This device meets RF exposure guidelines when used in the normal position at least 5 mm away from the body.

When a carry case, belt clip, or holder is used for body worn operation, it should not contain metal and should postion the product at least 5 mm away from your body. Ensure the above seperation distance instructions are followed.

5GHz Wi-Fi Notice (Europe and Japan)

The Wi-Fi funtion for the device is restricted to indoor use only when operating in the 5150 MHz to 5350 MHz frequency range.
